

This Correction replaces LP 57 with LP 81. We forgot that we had to design B2L and B2R differently in this B Border than all of the other B Borders in the Stella Maris series because the units needed to be sewn together to honor the angle of the stripe in the border. So, to avoid Y-seams, the units have to come together slightly different. If you have the original pattern, please just print this document in place of the LP Sheet to get the general pressing directions as shown by the arrows. The correction for the pattern instructions is provided to explain the order of sewing the blocks together. Sorry for the mixup! We encountered this at a couple points in the design process for this block, but when we pulled all the instructions together, we forgot that this comes together differently than the others. Any pattern with a publication print date on the back of the pattern of 2/3/22 has the correction included and you won't need this page. If your pattern has an earlier date, you will need this. Thanks! ~ From the Quiltworx Family
